"This past week I had the honor of leading an amazing group of agents from all over the country, as the current president for Safeco Insurance's National Agent Advisory Council. I will forever cherish these moments. I'm grateful to continue to partner with a company who allow their agent's voices to be heard and create change for the independent agency channel."

Why Would Coverage Still Be Important If You Are Storing Your Summer Items?

It's that time of the year where a lot of your summer toys are going to hunker down for winter hibernation. But that doesn't mean that you don't want to make sure that your insurance is up-to-date and in place. Even if you'll not be using your boat/yacht, trampoline, or pool until summer, they can still sustain damages, thefts, or vandalism. And they can still hurt guests or trespassers. Ask us about your next steps as you get ready for fall and winter. (Please keep in mind that carriers are subject to change and may change guidelines at any time. Check with your agent for specifics.)

DID YOU KNOW THAT YOUR OLDER VEHICLE COULD HAVE SOME HIDDEN VALUE?

~PATTY SCHOELHAMER
Licensed Insurance Specialist

After my car accident in 2019, we got more for our truck than we thought we would. Our truck was about 7 years old. If you have an older vehicle, but it is low in miles; you have done updates—new tires, new stereo, and things like that; and/or the interior looks fairly new, you could most likely get a little bit more for it if it's in an accident than what Kelley Blue Book says.

Our truck was almost brand new looking. We got almost $10,000 for a 2012 vehicle. We had full coverage, medical payments coverage, towing insurance, and renters car insurance at the time of the accident. We took the money we got from our claim and bought a new truck. Without having those things, we would have been out of a lot more money than just our insurance deductible.

Remember The Days You Used to Wait On Hold?

Looping elevator music, repeating yourself to multiple people...and those robot menus!

We don't want you dealing with that either!

DOING SOME TRAVELING BEFORE THE COLD WEATHER REALLY SETS IN?

Some of our clients like to travel to other states during different times of the year. If you're like them, ask us about RV insurance! If you just store yours at your house for the colder months, ask us about RV insurance! Basically, if you have an RV, we recommend coverage throughout the entire year.

Making sure that you have stable coverage when you are using your motor home helps avoid headaches if something like an accident on the road or theft at a campground happens. Making sure that you have stable coverage when your RV is parked at home helps protect you if it is stolen, vandalized, or somehow damaged while sitting.
